THE Club are the original bottled Cocktails. Years of experience have made them the perfect Cocktails that they are. Being scientifically mixed and the very best goods purchasable used in their manufacture, and properly aged, they are much better than any Cocktail freshly made. The Club brand and its guarantee of excellence stands the same to cocktails as the Hall Mark in England and the Sterling in America do to silver. When dealers offer you a substitute it is for the purpose of larger profits, and the quality must necessarily be inferior. Insist upon having the Club Cocktail and take no other. No imitation ever equals the original.

SARAH BERNHARDT says: I find the Urbana Wine Co.'s "GOLD SEAL" CHAMPAGNE excellent; in fact, superior to many French Champagnes. It surprises me that such a fine wine can be produced in America.

A Real Musical Instrument

Not a mere novelty—for curiosity and fun. The Victor is a musical instrument, like a piano. More than a piano; it is orchestra if you want it; band if you want it; piano if you want it; voice if you want it.

And it plays itself. It is not like an idle piano standing around with nobody to play it.

It brings the talent of the great singers, players, orchestras, entertainers of every sort, right to your home. You could not get the originals—even for a single performance—for less than $100,000, if you get them at all. You can have them, with the Victor—whenever you want them, as long as you want them—for a few dollars.

There can be but one best. The judges at the Pan-American Exposition unanimously decided that the Victor was it.

Send for catalogue of the new Victor (with the rigid arm).

FAIRBANK'S GLYCERINE TAR SOAP

LIKE A BREATH OF OUTDOORS

The refreshing odor of FAIRBANK'S GLYCERINE TAR SOAP reminds one of the fragrance of a Pine Forest. It cleanses, heals, purifies and acts as an antiseptic tonic for both skin and scalp. It cuts grease, grime and dirt more thoroughly than other Soaps — is therefore preferable for the toilet, bath and shampoo.

The principal ingredients of FAIRBANK'S GLYCERINE TAR Soap are pure glycerine and Pine Tar. There is nothing in it to harm the skin of a babe; there is everything in it to help the skin to healthy action and keep it in perfect condition.

If your grocer or druggist doesn't keep it, write us for a free sample cake, postpaid.

THE COOK is a genuine queen, and is the only royal personage whose presence is felt in the length and breadth of this democratic land. She arrives to-day and she departs to-morrow, and is a law unto herself. She will not be trifled with or coerced. She is as independent as the bird of the air, and is haughty and arrogant to a degree. She is furthermore despotic and whimsical, and often a bundle of nerves. She is affected by meteorologic changes. To say the least, she shines as the greatest enemy of domestic peace and happiness, and is largely the cause of the great prosperity of the hotels of this country. She is a problem that defies all efforts at solution, and it looks as if she will so remain indefinitely, despite the arguments of social reformers. With the hotel as an avenue of escape, however, the autocratic attitude of the culinary queen may in time be changed, though it is difficult to fancy that anything can ever interfere materially with her power. She seems to have been put upon the earth to rule and not to serve, and it is quite likely that she will sweep away all opposition and forever rule with a rolling-pin of iron. At least this is the consensus of opinion among competent critics, who furthermore say that if this absolute ruler were chained, Andromeda-like, to the domestic rock, she would easily escape, and without out the aid of the Perseus of copdom.

EUROPE always has her weather-eye on the United States, and never fails to keep herself informed as regards the movements of the only country that can, so to speak, give her cards and spades in the gentle art of gliding along prosperously at a chain-lightning rate of speed. The strides that this country is making in all directions are so great that Europe cannot believe her weather-eye. So now she is using her other organs of sense, especially her ears, that she may hear at least a handful of the gilt-edged aphorisms and sound facts that President Roosevelt is uttering as the representative of this country. Many of his utterances do not fit her mental stomach perfectly, and others do not digest with the rapidity that brings about the best results. But Mr. Roosevelt is not bothering about Europe's power to assimilate the facts which, though cold as regards solidity, are still, to borrow a threadbare metaphor, hot off the bat. Europe is not stone deaf, and if she does not like to hear many of the things that are said for her special benefit she still makes it a point to keep her ears open, that no word may escape her. She recognizes the master's voice and listens with most respectful attention.

THE DEPARTMENT STORE is an institution that never seems to weary of growing and adding to its usefulness. It now covers almost every branch of business known, from banking to manicuring, and it is difficult for even a white-whiskered seer and philosopher to say just where it will halt for refreshments. It is quite likely that it will shortly have clubs and hotels among its most attractive features, and will give a bargain-counter cocktail for seven cents and rent rooms at forty-nine cents a day. Club dues may strike the popular fancy at two dollars and seventy-five cents a year and initiation fees at seven dollars and forty-nine cents. The public will have clubs and hotels, as they are both a luxury and a necessity; and it is among the possibilities that the managers and conductors of many of these hostelries may find it to their advantage to move into department stores and become a part of them. In an age of overcrowding, such as this is, almost anything in the way of centralization is possible, and the department store is the great centralizer that keeps people bunched and together for business and convenience, and prevents their scattering too much when they have, as they usually have, minutes in which to accomplish the work of hours. By living and shopping on the spot the man will enjoy all the blessings of club and hotel life, and woman will be rampant in her element.

AT THE VIRGINIA SPRINGS.

HE—"We must economize."
SHE—"Then you shall give up smoking and I will have my gowns cut lower."

HER ONLY OPEN DATE.

"NAME the day," sighed the fond lover.

He had stolen the opportunity to propose by availing himself of an artistic piano recital at the regular weekly meeting of the Bach-Gounod cult, of which she was a prominent member.

"I wish I could," she whispered; "but my Mondays are taken by the ladies' literary association, my Tuesdays by the sewing and slandering social, my Wednesdays by the higher-thought coterie, my Thursdays by the Bach-Gounods, my Fridays by the Browning researchers, my Saturdays by the charitable visitors, and my Sundays by the heathen-helpers. My evenings are all booked for a long time ahead because of lectures, essay-readings, and various intermittent clubs. I wish I could find an open date, but you see how it is."

"Couldn't you"—the lover's voice trembled with the rashness of his suggestion—"couldn't you resign from one of the clubs and trust me to take its place?"

"Mercy, no!" she rippled; "but I'll tell you what we might do. Wait until the next leap-year and I will marry you the evening of the twenty-ninth of February."

AT THE RED DOG HOTEL.

GRIZZLY PETE—"Did yer hear about Bronco Bill tryin' ter defraud th' life-insurance companies?"

HURRICANE BOB—"Nope; what did he do?"

GRIZZLY PETE—"Got heavily insured an' then called Alkali Ike a liar."

A PUZZLE, INDEED.

"THIS," declared the eminent orator, "is the very key to the whole question."

"But," interrupted a small man in a rear seat, "where is the key-hole?"

PREPARING THE ROUTE.

"JAMES," said the member of the four hundred to his secretary, "I am about to be married. I wish that you would write to a hotel in London, engaging rooms for three weeks; to one in Paris, engaging rooms for a month; to Monte Carlo, securing apartments for two weeks; to Nice, Vienna and Rome, one week each; to St. Augustine, Florida, and Asheville, North Carolina, one week each; then secure apartments at the Waldorf-Astoria for two months. Then engage room and board at the best hotel in Sioux Falls for six months."

"I wish you joy again," murmured the deferential secretary.

HIS SAD END.

"W'OT'S become uv dat red-headed bell-hopper w'ot always said he could guess w'ot people wanted by de way de bell rung?" asked the hotel-porter of the head bell-boy.

"He hopped a call from four eighty-six yestiddy mornin'," explained the head bell-boy. "He took up a pitcher uv ice-water, because he said the bell rung like it was a thirsty call."

"Well?"

"Well, dere was a guy from Kentucky in dat room, dat's all."

EXPLAINED.

He (with spectacles)—"Jessica said that she was never merry when she heard sweet music."

She (without spectacles)—"I suppose she wasn't used to sitting in a box at the opera."

FLORA PARKER IN "MR. BLUE BEARD."

Thou art a fixed, a well-fixed, star,
That shines from here to Zanzibar.

In spirit we outsoar the kite
Wh. n basking in its gracious light,

And we would like the frozen sphere
Of snow to hit us on the ear

If it would only make us see
Athwart our vision sudden-lee

A thousand stars flash, and the light
Of each as lovely and as bright

As yon bright star that makes aright
Our dream a true Arabian night.

ANOTHER CURSE OF CIVILIZATION.

"AH," SAID the cannibal chieftain, nervously rubbing some fresh bumps on his head and casting apprehensive glances toward the doorway of his home, from which he had just emerged in great haste, "I thought there would be trouble after that missionary had told her highness about the great advancement of woman since she had discovered the advantages of clubs."

Pining for the good old days when man was the only individual permitted to affiliate with clubs, he hied toward the tall timber, inwardly moaning that the world was growing too fast for him.

HARD TO LOCATE THE PAIN.

"Where is his pain?"

"Dat's de trouble, mister. You see, Jimmie 's so thin he don't know whether it's de back-ache or stomach-ache."

AN OUTRAGE.

PROMETHEUS was chained to the rock for stealing fire from heaven.

"This is a blamed outrage," he exclaimed, "with coal costing twenty dollars a ton!"

Just then the vulture descended and made things warm for him.

ECONOMY.

"FATHER," says the scientific son of the plutocrat, "did you know that diamonds are pure carbon, and that they will burn just like coal?"

"What?" asked the plutocrat. "Is that a fact?"

"Yes," answered the son in a convincing manner.

With a bound the plutocrat goes to the wide marble stairway and calls, "Mother! girls! Come here!" As soon as his wife and daughters appear he says, "I just had a ton of coal dumped into the furnace-room. Go to your jewel-caskets, take out all your diamonds, send them to the cellar and have that coal taken to your apartments. Burn the diamonds and wear the coal. We've got to cut expenses some way."

AT MONTE CARLO.

THE VILLAIN—"I would marry ze beautiful American, but ze rich old people iss in ze way. How can I get rid of heem? Ha! I know someding. I shall buy for heem one automobile."

WHERE LOVE IS COLD.

Rinks—"I hear that Boston girl is an old flame of yours?"

Jinks—"No; an old icicle."

WHEN HE GOT TIRED.

MRS. HANDOUT—"Do you never get tired of tramping?"

WEARY WILLIE—"Goodness, yes! Sometimes I gits as tired as a millionaire gittin' rested in Europe."

THE SHEIK.

FAR from his home by the deep-green Nile
He vends his wares through the city,
Humming the while in a careless style
Some unpronounceable ditty.

He has grasses from distant Palestine,
That flourished by Jordan's waters,
And strings of beads that were wont to shine
On the necks of Araby's daughters.

The tasseled fez on his grizzled crown
Is a relic of orient splendor,
And his skirt, divided, hangs loosely down,
Unheld by a single suspender.

His swarthy cheek shows a long, deep scar,
Destroying his olive complexion.
Was it made by some Bedouin's scimitar
As a token of pure affection?

"Is Gotham thy Mecca," I said, "oh, sheik?"
"Arrah, shure, it's nonsinse yer talkin'!
Oi'm known to me frinds as jist plain Mike.
This grass wance grew on a Jersey dyke,
An' thim baids—faix, they're med in Weehawken."

A PROPOSAL AT THE WALDORF.

ALGY DEDBROKE (leaning over)—"I love you a whole lot, Miss Brightly."
MISS BRIGHTLY—"That's nothing. Ferdy Gotrox loves me a whole sky-scraper."

A BUSY OFFICIAL.

OUR host was showing us through his club. In one room we found a haggard man, surrounded by a score of stenographers, typewriters and messenger-boys.

"I am going to sit into a little game of poker," said a club member who rushed into the room.

"Send word to Mr. Jones's house that he is detained down town to pass judgment on an exhibit of pictures," said the haggard man to one of the stenographers.

"I am going to the Flipp theatre to see the new burlesque," announced another new-comer.

"Boy," ordered the haggard man, "run out to Mr. Smith's and tell his wife that he will not be home to-night, because he has to attend to a perplexing column of figures."

"I am going to attend a quiet little wine-supper," whispered a third new-comer.

"Send a note out to Mr. Jobson's, saying that he will be compelled to endeavor to find that perplexing balance to-night," ordered the haggard man.

"Who is he?" we whispered as our guide drew us on.

"He's the official excuse-inventor," explained our guide. "It's a new idea of ours, to have our excuses for absence from home of such a nature that they may be said to be absolutely true."

As we left a club attendant hurried in and said,

"Mr. Buffer got into a little fight down street and won't go home until his blacked eye is fixed up."

"Send word to Mrs. Buffer," ordered the excuse-inventor without a moment's hesitation, "that Mr. Buffer has accepted an invitation to witness a demonstration of applied art."

"How on earth did you ever get hold of such an ingenious man?" we asked.

"Oh, it was easy," said our guide. "He has been married six times."

BEFORE THAT.

COUNT SWITZER—"Waiter, I can't eat that chicken. Where did you get it—at a rummage sale?"

WAITER—"No, sah. We had dat chicken in stock long befo' rummage sales war eber invented."

AN OBLIGING LANDLORD.

"YOU seem to have a great trade," said the new guest to the landlord of the Sportsman's hotel on the shores of Lake Superior.

"Oh, yes," he smiled. "I cater to the patronage I desire, and I am glad to say that my policy has proven immensely successful."

"Of course," says the new guest, "you have good rooms, and you serve good meals and all that; but even these advantages do not seem to me to be of the kind that would explain the simply overflowing condition of your house at all times."

"Well," explained the landlord, "I don't mind telling you that I have one clerk who does nothing else but make affidavits to the size of the fish or weight of the game secured by my guests."

REASONING BY SOUND.

"THIS," said Mr. Justgottit, who was entertaining a few friends at dinner at his club, "is the chargé-d'affaires of the feast."

Here he indicated the choicest dish on the table.

"No, no, father," interrupted his embarrassed son; "you mean the chef-d'œuvre."

"I suppose I do," said Mr. Justgottit; "but the word I used gives me more of an impression of the cost of the dish."

A HOP-PICKING.

NOT AT ALL.

"THEY tell me," said the guileless stranger in the lobby of the hotel at San Antonio, "that a revolver is just like a dress-suit down here—that a man doesn't"——

"Not at all, son," interrupted a big-mustached man; "not at all. A man never wants a dress-suit down here until he is going to get married or buried. And he wants a gun, and he wants to have it handy; and he wants to know just how to work it before he gets too gay with his comments on our climate, our customs, or our conduct. Savvy?"

The guileless tenderfoot savvyed with all due haste.

THROW a lucky man overboard in the Frazer and he'll come up with a salmon in his mouth.

TEMPUS FUGIT.

WITHIN my watch it hath a place
Where oft mine eye may meet it—
A dainty, dimpled, pictured face,
With tender glance I greet it.

A moral lesson may be found—
Now, don't anticipate me.
Of course you've caught it on the bound—
You scarcely can await me.

You think whene'er I seek the hours,
Mine eye this picture meeting,
I'm minded maids are fading flowers
And youth and beauty fleeting.

Oh, not a bit of it! I read
The lesson thus: "You'd better
Make haste your wooing with more speed—
Some other chap might get her."

TRUMAN ROBERTS ANDREWS.

DIME-MUSEUM MANAGER—"Say, Jim, the wild man is too tame this morning. Chuck him in that colored comic supplement."

UP TO DATE.

"YES," said the proprietor of the new hotel, "we have every modern improvement. For instance, here is an apartment that we have just had constructed to meet a new demand on the part of our guests."

The suite of rooms he showed us was made entirely of steel. The doors were all heavy, with combination and time-locks, and the general appearance of the apartment was that of the best grade of bank-vault.

"What's this for?" we ask. "Some millionaire?"

"Oh, no," he explains. "It is for the use of visiting maestros and impresarios from the old country. It is guaranteed to be absolutely constable-proof."

PHILIP of Macedon was taking an airing when his slave repeated the usual admonition, "Philip, remember thou art mortal."

"I know it," tartly replied the monarch. "I tried to complain about the steam heat this morning."

Observing a "janitor-on-premises" sign, he shuddered and ordered his minions to hasten on.

CITY ECONOMIES.

"YES, uncle," said Nephew John, who was showing the old gentleman the sights, "this is one of the most complete hotels in the country. It has every convenience and attraction, and the proprietors have just finished one of the finest roof-gardens that was ever constructed."

"Roof-garden, eh?" asked Mr. Meddergrass. "Wa-al, I s'pose they have to have somewheres to raise their vegetables, an' they don't seem to have no yard at all to the place."

"I KNOW old man Dunnley is rich," said the inquisitive friend, "but I don't see how he can afford to keep his family at the most expensive hotels."

"It's not so expensive for him, after all," said the knowing friend. "One of his daughters married a foreign nobleman who used to work in several of the hotels, and he gets Dunnley professional rates."

No doubt I've missed some chances for advancement now and then,
For opportunities, they say, come once,
and ne'er again;
But on the other hand, some consolation
I can view
By reflecting on my fortune in the things
I didn't do.

With germs in every street-car and with ice on every street
So much depends on how you draw your breath or move your feet!
And though my name's not written high upon the lucky list
I feel profoundly grateful for the trouble that I've missed.

THE EDITOR'S BRAIN

DID NOT WORK WELL UNDER COFFEE.

A brain worker's health is often injured by coffee, badly selected food and sedentary habits. The experience of the managing editor of one of the most prosperous newspapers in the Middle West, with Postum Food Coffee illustrates the necessity of proper feeding for the man who depends on his brain for living.

"Up to three years ago," writes this gentleman, "I was a heavy coffee drinker. I knew it was injuring me. It directly affected my stomach and I was threatened with chronic dyspepsia. It was then that my wife persuaded me to try Postum Food Coffee. The good results were so marked that I cannot say too much for it. When first prepared I did not fancy it, but inquiry developed the fact that cook had not boiled it long enough, so next time I had it properly made and was charmed with it. Since that time coffee has had no place on my table save for guests. Both myself and wife are fond of this new cup which 'cheers but does not inebriate' in a much truer and fitter sense than coffee. My stomach has resumed its normal functions and I am now well and strong again mentally and physically.

"I am confident that coffee is a poison to many stomachs, and I have recommended Postum with great success to a number of my friends who were suffering from the use of coffee." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"Is it correct to say that General Blazes received a reception?"

"Er—no—well, it doesn't sound just right, but"——

"Well, the citizens gave him one, didn't they?"

"Yes."

"And he received it, didn't he?"

"Well, he didn't refuse it, anyhow; but, see here! He was received by the citizens, wasn't he?"

"Yes."

"How could he receive and be received at the same time?"

"Yes; but when they gave him the reception he received them all and shook hands with them, didn't he?"

"To be sure; and they received him with a reception at which he received them and accepted their congratulations with a cordial reception—oh, hang this language, anyhow!"—Washington Times.

GREAT WESTERN CHAMPAGNE

The New York Commercial Journal says: "There is one merit in American champagne which should find it especial favor as compared with the French. It makes and carries its own honest flavor, whereas the French champagne has NO flavor until it is added through the medium of other liqueurs at the end of the fermenting process. In other words, the French flavor is made, the American is born."

Our Costly Brewing

The water used in SCHLITZ Beer comes from six wells, driven down to rock.

The barley is the finest grown, selected personally by a partner in our concern.

The hops come mostly from Bohemia, and cost twice what common hops cost.

Every process of the brewing is in personal charge of two of the brothers who own the business.

All the air that touches SCHLITZ Beer is filtered. Every drop of SCHLITZ Beer is filtered through masses of white wood pulp.

Every bottle is cleaned by machinery four times before using.

After the bottle is filled and sealed, it is sterilized for 1½ hours by the process of M. Pasteur.

Common beer can be brewed for half the cost of SCHLITZ; but our extra cost is all spent to insure absolute purity. Yet common beer and SCHLITZ Beer cost you the same. Why not get the best for your money?

THE NEW LONDON.

It was a blithe New Zealander,
  Stalwart and straight and tanned,
Had traveled o'er the salt sea foam
  To see his motherland.
He tarried not an instant as
  He sped to London town—
He hired a guide and gayly cried,
  "Come, show me up and down!"

"Good sir," replied the courteous guide,
  "You have but to declare
What 'tis your chiefest wish to see,
  And I will take you there."
"Oh, show me, then," the stranger cried,
  "The war-office, Pall Mall."
"Alas!" replied the gentle guide,
  "'Tis now a smart hotel."

"Alackaday!" the stranger said,
  "That I was born so late.
Then pilot me unto the tower,
  To see the traitor's gate."
"It grieves me sore," the other said,
  "Your ardent hopes to quell.
That edifice is also turned Into a new hotel."

"Indeed?" exclaimed the stricken youth,
  Losing his ruddy tint.
"If I may not behold the tower,
  Then take me to the mint."
"There is no mint," the answer came;
  "There are no beaver hats.
The site is wholly occupied
  By residential flats."

"Westminster abbey, what of that?"
  "Good sir, you surely know
That Morgan carted it away
  To Boston, years ago."
"Then take me to the Mansion house"—
  The answer, like a knell,
Once more was uttered by the guide—
  "That's also an hotel."

It was a trist New Zealander
  That hied him to the shore,
And thus in burning words appeased
  His indignation sore:
"I came to see your storied piles,
  Your fanes and citadels;
I find them all replaced by flats,
  Or turned into hotels."

DIAMONDS on Credit

Why cramp yourself financially to wear Diamonds? Why not use your credit with Loftis? Select any Diamond in our million dollar stock and have it handed to you at your own door or place of business. If you like the Diamond, and are convinced that it is from 10 to 20 per cent better value than you can get elsewhere, pay one-fifth of the price and keep it, paying the balance in a series of eight equal monthly payments that you will hardly miss from your earnings.

LOFTIS' WAY is the one grand success in modern Diamond selling. WHY? Because the goods are the best; prices the lowest and terms the easiest. Every Diamond is sold under a GUARANTY CERTIFICATE of quality and value—the broadest and strongest ever given by a responsible house. Every Diamond is also sold with a perpetual option of exchange at full original price paid, for other goods or a larger Diamond.

LOFTIS' only requirement is a disposition to do as you agree to do, and a sufficient earning capacity to enable you to spare a few dollars from your income each month—usually from $3 to $10. You simply make a selection of a Diamond ring, brooch, locket, earrings, stud, cuff buttons or a Watch—LOFTIS DOES THE REST. There is no delay, disappointment, publicity, security or interest. There is no risk or expense involved in asking to have a Diamond sent for inspection, for LOFTIS pays all express charges.

LOFTIS' ESTABLISHMENT is the largest Diamond Credit Business in the world, and one of the oldest (Established in 1858.) It is responsible beyond question, and refers to any bank in America, for instance: Ask your local banker how LOFTIS is rated in the commercial world. He will turn to his Dun or Bradstreet book of commercial ratings, and tell you that no house stands higher in credit, promptness and reliability and that its representations may be accepted without question.

LOFTIS' CASH OFFER: Pay cash for any Diamond and you will be given a bill of sale with the option of returning the Diamond at any time within one year and having all you paid refunded in spot cash—less ten per cent. If you selected a fifty-dollar Diamond, you could wear it for a whole year and then return it and get $45 in cash, thus having the pleasure and prestige of wearing a beautiful Diamond for less than ten cents per week. We can make this offer for the reason that we are direct importers of Diamonds, buying from the cutters of Amsterdam in larger quantities than any other house in our line of business, and from the further fact that Diamonds are increasing in value at the rate of about twenty per cent annually.

LOFTIS' MONEY BACK OFFER: Remember that we make it absolutely safe for you to send first payment (one-fifth of the price) with your order, for we promptly and cheerfully refund what you have paid in case you conclude not to buy. Write today for our beautifully illustrated catalogue—worth its weight in gold to any intending Diamond buyer. It shows thousands of beautiful pieces and answers every question about our goods, prices, terms and the Loftis System.

DR. SIEGERT & SONS WIN CASE.

GRANTED EXCLUSIVE RIGHT TO WORD "ANGOSTURA" FOR THEIR BITTERS.

A decision has been handed down by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit in the case of Dr. J. G. B. Siegert & Sons vs. A. Bauer & Company, a corporation, affirming the decree of the United States Circuit Court, Northern District of Illinois, which granted to the complainants, Dr. J. G. B. Siegert & Sons, the exclusive right to the use of the word "Angostura" in connection with bitters.

The decree in question contains the following passage: "The court further finds that the said word 'Angostura' is a trade-mark, good and valid in law, and that the use of said word by the complainants and their predecessors since the date of its adoption, as aforesaid, has been continuous for over fifty years, and that the complainants are now in fact and in law the owners thereof, and have the exclusive right to use the same as a trade-mark for and in connection with the sale of bitters."

Judges Jenkins, Grosscup, and Baker reviewed the case on appeal, and the opinion of the court, as delivered by Judge Jenkins, effectually disposed of the arguments used by the defendants in their attempt to overthrow the claims of the Siegerts to the exclusive use of the trade-mark "Angostura Bitters."

Messrs. Charlton & Copeland, the well-known trade-mark lawyers, were the attorneys for the complainants.
